Difference Between FDI and FII

1	Foreign Direct Investment.	Foreign Institutional Investment or, Investors.
2	When any organisation of one nation makes an investment in any organisation of another country, it is known as FDI.	When any organisation of any country makes an investment in the Stock market of another country, it is known as FII.
3	FDI brings long term capital.	FII brings long term capital as well as short term capital.
4	Entry and exit is difficult in case of FDI.	Entry and exit is very easy in FII.
5	In FDI transfer of funds, technology, resources, strategies, new concept are done from the developed countries to the developing one.	In FII only funds are transferred from one country to another.
6	FDI helps in developing infrastructure, increasing job opportunities and also plays a key role in the economic development of the country.	FII does not play any role in the economic development of the country.
7	Through FDI, there is administrative control in the company.	Through FII, there is no any control in the company.
